SENATE GAVEL WELL USED.

Has Been on the President's Table for More Than a Hundred Years.

Assistant Sergeant at Arms Stewart of the United States Senate has ordered a silver band for the gavel that is used by Senator Frye in calling the Senators to Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Harper enter-tained on Friday night at their home at 59 Fourth South at a valentine card party. In the decorations and refresh-ments the valentine scheme was very tastefully carried out. A very enjoyable evening was spent by the guests. The first prize was won by Mrs. W. H. Clough and Mr. H. J. Binch: the consolation prize by Miss Mabel Blewett and Ernest Sny-der. order. This gavel is unlike most of the symbols of authority wielded by presiding officers. It consists of a piece of ivory shaped like an hour glass. Nobody knows the origin or age of the gavel, save that the origin or age of the gavel, save that it has been used in the Senate for more than 100 years. It is yellow with age and is slick and smooth az the result of long handling.

"The history of this gavel," said Mr. Stewart the other day, "is wrapped in mystery. We have traced it back far enough to know that it came to Washington from Philadelphia in 1801, and has been on the Vice-President's table ever since. I have just ordered a silver band with an inscription for the gavel. It will bear the date 1801. One hundred years after the arrival of this gavel in Washington we bought an inkstand for the use of the presiding officer of the Senate. The stand and the gavel are the only pieces of furniture allowed permanently on his desk in the Senate."

The Senate is such a decorous body that the Vice-President never breaks the boards in his desk pounding for order. Over in the House the carpenter has to put in a couple of new planks in the Speaker's table every session. During Reed's regime the boards had to be renewed every month or so. About fifty people met at the Unity hall Wednesday evening and organized the Bonita Social club with the following officers. A. G. Mein, president; Ray W. Wiley, vice-president; Mrs. Sturgis, second vice-president; Hoy Moreton, scoretary; Murphy, treasurer; Derese, sergeant-st-arms. After the business meeting dancing was indulged in and later in the evening refreshments were served in the hall dinling-room. The club will give its formal opening to the public with a grand ball and supper Wednesday, February 22.

There will be a meeting of the Geneva Yacht club Wednesday, February 15, at the office of Dr. Stater, Provo City. Busi-ness relative to the coming season will be considered. Members are requested and Passing of the Silk Hat.

Church Appointments. Work of Women's Clubs.

Rev. John E. Carver of Ogden and Mrs. Georgia Snow Carleton of this city were the topic-givers at the Ladies Literary club Friday afternoon, and the programme they presented, with the beautiful numbers of Miss Turner, made one of the most interesting and enjoyable afternoons in the history of the club. Thackeray was the theme presented by Rev. Mr. Carver, and his method of handling the great writer made one who had not read and reread his matchless stories feel that he had lost much of the best in the world's literature. Rev. Mr. Carver is an eloquent speaker and as he presented, one by one, the great characters of Thackeray's novels—living characters as they were to Thackerny, and as he makes them to his readers—his every word was followed with rapt attention and almost made one resolve to go home to read and re-read one of the great writers of the past age, of every age.

Interest of club members and their friends is just now centered in the annual breakfast to be given next Friday at the Emery-Holmes cafe. Acceptances must all be sent to the committee not later than tomorrow, as no reservations will be made after Monday.

The house decoration committee meets tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Eimer B Jones, 129 Second East street. Mrs. Jones will give the topic of the morning, "Oriental Rugs," and the meeting will be called to order promptly at 10 o'clock.

A very delightful feature of last Friday's meeting was the informal talk by Mrs. Bertha Kunz Baker, who has been giving a series of dramatic readings and interpretations here. Mrs. Baker said that on her first visit to the great West she was stirred by the natural beauties of the country. "This time," said Mrs. Baker, "I am stirred by the great work that women are doing in educational and civic matters. It is always a joy to me to touch with women of women's clubs, because it is the women's clubs always foster the things that minister to our higher development. Through women's clubs are being developed the subtler things which cannot be measured or weighed, but which has so much to do with the development of the highest in the human heart." the human heart."

The next meting of the music section will be held the morning of February 22

Mrs. J. G. Souther entertained the members of the Wasatch Literary club and several guests Tuesday last at her home. Mrs. W. I. Brown gave a review of Long-fellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn," with readings by Mrs. William Oliver. A topic of current interest was "The New York Subway," by Mrs. A. L. Hamlin Several well rendered plano soles were given by Mrs. Eben Hall and Miss Brecken.

LONDON'S NEW CRAZE.

Fashionable Persons Take Pets to Places of Amusements.

The society craze of taking pets to places of entertainment appears to have een started at the Royal Italian circus, where many well-known leaders of society, including Miss Nathalle Janotha, the German Emperor's court planiste, have taken prize dogs and cars and other animals to be introduced to Sig. VolpFs trained animals. "The other evening," said Sig. Volpi, who chatted with a Daily News representative, "a gentleman well known in the city brought his pet Soudanese monkey in the stalls. We have also been honored by distinguished ladies who have actually brought their pet cockatoos, mice and monkeys to see the performance. So long as they pay for their seats and the animals behave themselves they cannot be refused admission. It is a strange fad and it seems to please the dumb visitors immensely. Now and again the monkeys in the stalls are frightened at the sound of the music and the result is a little distracting to the performers."

The Italian circus, our representative learned, is not the only place of amusement that has been selected by indies and and gentlemen who desire to treat their pets to a few hours entertainment. Brilliantly dressed ladies have sat in the boxes at the Royal Italian opera fondling snakes and lizards.

Strange pets have a fascination for ladies in high scolety. One lady has a devoted python twelve feet long. Another goes on her travels with a pet boa constrictor fifteen feet long, which, of course, if it liked could crush her to death at any moment. It was caught in Somaliand. It accompanies its mistress placed in a long box. A ladies' mouse club is in existence in the West End, and blue mottled mice recently fetched 120 guineaus a pair.

KING AND THE WAISTCOAT.

Arbiter of Fashion Called on to Abolish or Reform Garment.

of the most interesting developnents in English politics of late years has been the activity and we may even say initiative of the King in public affairs. Surfeited, perhaps, by years spent, so far as his public functions were con-cerned. In the laying of cornerstones, he seemed to have determined to find a use in kingship somewhat more real than oc-cessional oratory. There are mysterious hints that he succeeded in various delicate casional oratory. There are mysterious calculate foreign missions, that he asserted himself in internal affairs, and the imagination of the more sanguine began to conceive of another Prince Hal and to dream of twentieth century Agincourts—peaceful, of course, in keeping with our modern humane politics.

Now it has ever been one of the prerogatives of royalty to act as the high pricat of fashion. When monarchy was in its lowest estate this function at least remained unchallenged. Wheever it was that made the laws, it was the king or poradventure his deputy, the Prince of Wales, who made the tailors.

And so it is even today. Whether we live under king or president, the first gentieman of Europe legislates for us as to our apparel. We may not all live up to his statutes, but he is fashion's lawgiver for our race.

for our race.
It is in the light of these facts that a It is in the light of these facts that a recent pronouncement by a London physician may take on importance in the eyes of a progressive and patriotic monarch. This physician has called the world's attention to the fact that the waistcoat (known in America as the vest) is a preposterous and pernicious article of apparel, thick where it ought to be thin and thin where it ought to be think. He declares, and he is supported by his colleagues, that the lungs need protection behind and not before, a hyglenic consideration ignored by the designer of the original waistcoat and by all his unenlightened successors.

Surely here is an opportunity for an autocrat of fashion. Let the king abolish the waistocat and go down in history as a benefactor of mankind. History is too full of the selfishness of rank the vanities of the great. The high heel saved the pride of diminutive majesty, and the beauty patch came to hide the blemish on a royal cheek. Let us now have a real humanitarian edict. Abolish the waist-coat, or turn it round.—Chicago Evening Post.

Valentine Hosiery.

Valentine Hosiery.

Announcement comes from the dry goods district that Valentine hosiery is now on sale, and is expected to divide favor with pocket stockings. A Fifth avenue shop which makes a specialty of hosiery is responsible for it. Besides the allover X-ray designs and open-work instep patterns there are hand-embroidered effects in white or black grounds. Hearts predominate in the designs. Some of the lace liste thread kinds have a variety of embroidered treatments in gold and assorted colors. "To My Own Fond Love" and "To My Valentine" are favorite sentences in the embroidery "treatments." The announcement says that silk Valentine hosiery sell over the counter at $5 a pair.—New York Sun.

Cheaper Diamonds.

If the De Beers company, or 'Diamond Trust,' fails to secure control of the newly discovered diamond mine, the price of diamonds may drop materially. The possible production of South African diamonds has long been much larger than the market would absorb at present prices. The trust's policy is to restrict output and advance prices.

The Premier mine, near Pretoria, where the 3622-carat diamond was found, is outside the trust. It is turning out all the diamonds it can mine and marketing them at the high prices created by the trust. Last year it earned over 800 per cent dividend, and its stock is selling at 144 times par.

Estimates of the diamonds in the Premier mine are that the total production may be worth $500,000,000. Unless the trust can secure control of this production there will be competition and the price must fall—New York World.
